The results of the data of the survey and the interview data were consistent in all organizations. There was strong support for forensic law to be modified to include a compulsory response rate to ensure that organizations respond to recommendations. Family The immediate family of the person who died can request information, such as medical reports, patient notes, post-mortem report, toxicology report, suicide notes and photos. If we can not fulfill this period of time, we will let you know as soon as we can and tell him why. There may be some rates to copy documents. And she is still in contact with the main forensic to massage improvements in the law. "There has been a fantastic level of forensic interest, before, during and after our research, and we have had a great response." We received 42 completed questionnaires and the data was extremely robust. Our findings are informing the law and the reform of the policies, and the improvement of the law has all the possibilities of helping to save lives. Throughout the five-year study period, 20% of the recommendations of the coroners had been rejected by the organizations that had been presented to. "We took our research to coincide with the review because we expected to be able to report politics. Dr. Jennifer Moore (Faculty of Law and Department of Preventive and Social Medicine) has a rare fund on both public health and law, which it qualified it to be the right person to investigate the effectiveness of the New Zealand Court of the Coroner. "I think there is a general idea that nobody makes no notice of the recommendations of the Choconers, but we discovered that it was not the case. However, several of our other recommendations have been included in the modified bill, as a new definition of the interested parties, "so, in general, we are satisfied with the capture of our findings. It is not a radical idea, and yet it is so important. "The health and home of the 25th anniversary of Tumu", this is not an investigation that will sit down to gather the dust on an academic shelf. Moore worked with the main forensic to try to obtain compulsory response systems aggregated to the amendments that cross Parliament. The family member also has the right to request copies of the Forensic, Forensic, Statements and other investigation reports. A e a, ~ "Our research has been a combination of public health analysis, legal analysis and social sciences, and has thrown some valuable suggestions. The bill to the Justice and Electoral Committee has now referred For your consideration and to listen to the presentations. They have been actually open about the recommendations we have made and are already making changes actively where they can. Then, the forensic has just supported the action taken. Moore did not find that all recommendations hit Your brand "and for a good reason. He has to go to the right person who can do something about it. "It has been a massive project, much bigger than I expected, but it has been the best way to answer the questions about the effectiveness of forensics in this country. But immediately she hit an obstacle. Working largely Only, they did not know what other forensic did and, in general, obtained information about what others were doing of the reports of the media. But it is difficult to identify systemic problems and find solutions without a deep understanding of what forensic have to deal with. The Participants of the investigation were so strongly agreed upon how the law that feared that interview only those who agree to be an interview Stados could have biased the results. She is writing a book about the New Zealand coronary system and how it is compared to those of other countries. But nobody had studied what she passed to those recommendations. Reports of the Coroners Court Law Present and the full coronal findings must be electronically available. They did not do it. "There was no research from New Zealand, and limited international investigation, about the decision-making of the Choconers and the From the implementation of forensic recommendations organizations. The coroners only have two researchers to help them with the cases. He is a lawyer, social scientist and scientific health, with experience in New Zealand, Australia and Israel. and at the end of this year, he will represent a remuneration scholarship to study Health Policy and Health Law in Harvard and Universities of Stanford. At the time of her report, she was acting director of the Legal Affairs Center at the Faculty of Law, but she had won her PhD at the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Melbourne. A e a, ~ "I was surprised. He got the approval to interview 79, but once he collected the answers, he began to wonder if more data was needed. "If he goes to the wrong person and they say ", this is not for me", either in the container or resend it ", but if the recommendations are constantly done in the wrong place over time, it is less likely to be sent or implemented. Moore is Working to ensure that forensics have access to the right people. Initially, Moore thought that his research would involve crossing the appropriate records in the law reports for the Forensic Court. The Law Foundation of New Zealand was to finance the project and all The eyes were at Moore's work because it was likely to influence the Government's Review of the Coroners Law 2006. It is a scanner that there are no reports of the Court Law of Coroner.. A e a, ~ a "The system It is there to prevent the loss of future life, and improvements can be made. "It's not your fault," they only find themselves twice and have limited access to the findings of other coroners, so we feel there is space to improve there. Moore is pointing to help forensics to change your practice and work more Changing how they work, especially when obtaining better access to existing data. Moore suggests that the figure could have been less than some people may have "A recommendation should be aimed at specific organizations or persons who are effective. A e a, ~ a "Coronators do a really important job, and their recommendations have the potential to save lives and guide politics. She contacted more from 200 organizations that forensics had made recommendations. Until now, the response of the crowned has been good and fast, but some improvements need time. There were no reports. A e a, ~ a "Coronators has a function of legal public health and, as I have a foot in both camps, it rated me to do the investigation of policies and suggest possible reforms. With 607 cases collected, Moore found the coronés had made 1,644 recommendations to 309 parts, With the highest number that goes to government organizations (121). Other courts produce law reports: it is a fundamental aspect of the legal system, but the Court of the Forensic seemed to have slipped through a gap. "I thought it was going to be easy to collect. The data, but it was a great mission, even discovering how many cases there were during the five-year period we study. Moore spent months traveling to courts throughout the country, tracking hard copies of hundreds of files, obtaining electronics. Copies of the files of the coronal services of New Zealand, the cross checking to see that they had them all, discovering that many disappeared, pursued, collaborating their information, and only He could really begin in his investigation. A e a, ~ "A great surprise for us was that we discovered that many crowned felt that they were working in a vacation. A e a, ~ a "in 49 percent of cases, organizations had already taken taken Because the recommendations of the coroners had taken too much time to get, especially in deaths in the hospital. "While mandatory responses are not included in the invoice at this stage, we still hope that it will happen because the investigation is overwhelmingly in favor of change, we can help forensics to point to the right person, although the investigation of Moore ended formally, it is still committed to helping forensics to use public health principles for better results.
